

~~Ques~~

Verbal & Non Verbal Cues in Person Perception:

Ans -> Information is provided by either verbal or non-verbal cues. Verbal cues are those which are provided by the target person to the perceiver. Non-verbal cues are those which are provided by the target person to the perceiver without the use of words.

Verbal Cues in Person Perception:

Verbal cues are those which are provided by the target person to the perceiver through the use of words. Verbal cues can be divided into two categories: explicit verbal cues and implicit verbal cues. Explicit verbal cues are those which are provided by the target person to the perceiver in a direct and unambiguous manner. Implicit verbal cues are those which are provided by the target person to the perceiver in an indirect and ambiguous manner. Verbal cues can be used to provide information about the target person's personality, attitudes, and emotions. Verbal cues can also be used to provide information about the target person's social status, education, and occupation.

Verbal cues are those which are provided by the target person to the perceiver through the use of words. Verbal cues can be divided into two categories: explicit verbal cues and implicit verbal cues. Explicit verbal cues are those which are provided by the target person to the perceiver in a direct and unambiguous manner. Implicit verbal cues are those which are provided by the target person to the perceiver in an indirect and ambiguous manner. Verbal cues can be used to provide information about the target person's personality, attitudes, and emotions. Verbal cues can also be used to provide information about the target person's social status, education, and occupation.

